

Wingman

A variation on group work and great for mini-plenaries

How it works

Split the class up into groups or pairs.

Between them they designate who will be the pilot (i.e. in charge and write down all the information) and who will be the wingman (the person who will fly missions to other tables to gain intel, ideas and knowledge that can then be debriefed back at HQ, i.e. their table).

Students can then identify any gaps in their knowledge and decide how they are going to gain the information required.
