

Paper Chains

Supports higher-order thinking.

Useful for revision or consolidation of a topic.

How it works

Cut up strips of paper or card and ask students to make as many connections between two ideas, concepts or events as possible. The idea is that each concept must link to the last. For example students could make links between two poems, different ecosystems, religions etc.